CAUTION: In case of eye contact, flush well with water, then continue reading, Happy holidays 2008! Yet another one, but this year it seems as though christmas, halloween and thanksgiving are all rolled into one big mess of retail holiday decorations and decor. Everyone should indeed practice CAUTION when combining holidays like that. Perhaps even calling a physician isn't out of the question. Things this year have been quite a series of cliffhangers, some of which seem to have no end, and hence no beginning. Living in the present is certainly one of the more satisfying ways of spending ones life. Apple Inc. and I parted ways in March of this year. It was 18 months of pure uncreative creativity, Since then. I've been practicing patience waiting for my next door to open. While waiting, Carl has been busy at work preparing for his company's big office move at the end of this year. He also got me a brand new 2008 Harley Nightster which I have been riding just about anywhere and everywhere. He, too, just passed his Motorcycle Safety course and is happily riding the bike until we become a two bike lamily. And speaking of family, De and Oli, myself and Carl now have a combined weight of 569bs. That's a lot of love. And we're sending it to you all this holiday season. Just remember to Keep Out of Reach of Childnen. And if swallowed, clink a glass of water. Or ego ngo, Or champagne. And most certainly, don't forget to make a toast to a happiest of New Year's for all. We are wisk-ing you the very same. Love, Jon (TOR), Carl (ACE), Oa & Oli.

Oh xmas time! Here again with the halls of retail stores decked with balls of holly. Or some other cheap ornaments to celebrate the season. It is on that note that I will indeed keep things simple and just wish you all a safe and happy holiday season. Miss Oa and Mister Oli send their very best. And so do I. AND, Happy New Year 2010 to all! JON =
